Dear Colleague

Re: Proposed move of Moorfields Eye Hospital's City Road services: Update on post-consultation decision-making

I am writing to update you on the next steps and decision-making following the Moorfields consultation, which ended on 16 September 2019.

Moorfields Eye Hospital NHS Foundation Trust and its research and education partner, the University College London (UCL) Institute of Ophthalmology have been exploring the opportunity to move services from their existing premises in City Road to the St Pancras hospital site in Camden.

Update on current status

The final report summarising the findings from the consultation will be published on Monday 13 January 2020 alongside an Integrated Impact Assessment and report 'Consultation with people with protected characteristics and rare conditions'. All the documents will be available from the website www.oriel-london.org.uk.

A joint health overview and scrutiny committee (JHOSC) led by local authorities in north central London is to give its view in response to the consultation, as required by national regulations. The JHOSC will consider the proposal at its next public meeting on 31 January 2020. This is a public meeting and if you wish to attend, details can be found on the JHOSC website.

- Wednesday, 12 February 2020
TIME: 5.30pm - 7.00pm
